Spring Disorders

Shattered nerves, tired brain, impure blood, debilitated system, all are the natural outcome in the Spring. A medicine must be used, and nothing equals Paine's Celery Compound. We let others praise us—you cannot help believing a disinterested party.

Brigadier-General W. L. Greenleaf, Burlington, Vt., writes: "I have used Paine's Celery Compound on several occasions, and always with benefit. Last spring, being very much run down and debilitated, I commenced using it. Two bottles made me feel like a new man. As a general tonic and spring medicine I do not know its equal."

"I have used two bottles of your Paine's Celery Compound, and it has given entire satisfaction as an appetizer and blood purifier." T. L. BARNES, Watertown, Dakota.

Paine's Celery Compound

Is prescribed by physicians, recommended by druggists, endorsed by ministers, praised by users, and guaranteed by the manufacturers, as a spring medicine which will do all that is claimed for it. Use it this spring, and see how quickly it tones you up.

VENOMOUS REPTILES.

The Astonishingly Large Rate of Mortality from Serpentine Venoms.

If the published figures are at all accurate, from twelve to twenty thousand persons die in British India from snake bite, largely from that of the cobra, which is a serpent of domestic habits. That the reptile was not long ago exterminated from all inhabited localities, says a writer in the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette, is owing to the fact that it is worshipped by many of the natives. Even to-day in Malabar Hill, the most fashionable European quarter of Bombay, a short time played on a musical instrument rarely fails to bring a cobra out of some hole or crevice, for native veneration is too much for English caution. The natives are the chief sufferers from this folly. Very few Englishmen have been bitten, for they do not walk out barefooted, and usually take a cane to poke the grass through which they walk. We believe only four or five whites of prominence have been bitten by poisonous snakes in India since the opening of the present century, and one of these was a midshipman on a vessel in the Bay of Bengal. One of the deadly hydnas, or water snakes, had been fished up, and the unfortunate youth handled it without knowing that it was venomous. Had the Hindoos exercised common sense, there would now be few cobras outside of the jungles. Martinique and the neighboring islands of St. Lucia each report a mortality from serpentine venoms rivaling that of India, for each of these islands is overrun with the fer de lance, a fiercely aggressive viper, which has the peculiarity of giving birth to sixty little snakes at once.

African explorers have their troubles with snakes, but they award the palm of danger not to them, nor to the lions or leopards, but to the fierce wild buffalo bulls. During Prof. Drummond's recent journey to Lake Nyassa, two of his followers were tossed by one of the savage creatures, and it was almost a miracle that one of the wounded men survived the injuries to his shoulders and ribs. The puff adder, an apparently sluggish creature, resembling in build, though not in its gorgeous colors, the horrible black and clammy cottonmouthed moccasins of our Southern swamps, has a pleasant trick of burying itself in the leaves and moss and of striking backward at any person who happens to come near it. The naia haje, a first cousin of the cobra, has a more aggressive and irritable, and the mamba, which runs down its victims, are the principal remaining poisonous serpents of Africa. There are green, black and flame-colored mambas, the last mentioned being often created. The mambas sometimes reach a length of twelve feet, and are known to have chased a horseman for miles. Their bite is almost certain death.

A survey of the serpentine kingdom establishes the fact that the most poisonous snakes are afraid of human beings. The chief exception are the mamba, the naia haje and the great ophiophagus elaps, or hamadryad, of Burmah. This creature, which rivals the mamba in length, has an expanding head like the cobra and naia haje, but differs from both in some anatomical particulars and also in the fact that it is a cannibal, living principally on other snakes. One of them chased a Burman in the woods a few years ago. The man ran, and thought to escape by swimming across a narrow stream. To his horror, on reaching the farther bank he found that the snake had crossed ahead of him. In his despair he tore off his turban and threw it at the reptile. The latter was obliging enough to go for the white rag and waste his venom upon it, the man meanwhile making his escape.

The mambas are principally found in Natal, though they exist to some extent as far north as Zanzibar, and may even have spread as far as the desert. We have found no mention of their presence in Egypt or in the Sinaite Peninsula. There is nothing in their habits, however, which would exclude them from the Northern tropics and subtropics, for they flourish under similar climatic influences south of the line. We notice that an item in its travels to the effect that the "serpents" which killed so many of the Israelites during their exodus from Egypt were guinea worms, scientifically known as the araucanum. These fearful creatures bury themselves in human flesh, producing sores which often prove fatal. We doubt, however, whether they can be made to fulfill the demands of the Scripture narrative. We read in Numbers, xxi, that "the Lord sent fiery serpents among the people and much people of Israel died." Geology has made us acquainted with extinct reptiles with whom one would not like to meet, even were he clothed in a coat of mail and armed with a repeating rifle. From some of these monsters the dragons and griffins which figure in the folk lore of all nations were undoubtedly depicted. They have happily gone, never to return, as have most of the rattlesnakes which formerly infested our oldest States. To this day, however, an occasional rattler is killed in the Blue Hills of Milton, less than a dozen miles from Boston, and the sea serpent, an apparently solitary relic of the saurian days, every now and then makes his appearance in the ocean.

Recent travelers in Alaska have heard from the Indians, though their faith has not been strengthened by sight, that herds of mastodons are yet feeding in the almost inaccessible interior pastures of our new possessions. We hope the story may prove to be true, and that a paleozoic specimen may yet be on exhibition in our menageries. Our belief is not strong in that direction, however, though one has seen the octopus, or devil fish, first brought into prominence by Victor Hugo, he is prepared to believe almost anything. The choice would not be a pleasant one, but in the alternative of being bitten by a naia or mamba, or of being cupped to death by an octopus, we think most persons would choose the former.

A TROUT'S GRATITUDE.

Hicks Was Kind to the Fish and Now They Try to Make Him Happy.

"A man named Hicks, who lives out in the hills of Arkansas, has on his farm a beautiful stream," says a writer in the Amateur Sportsman. "He attempted to stock it with trout, but soon discovered that the water was too warm. Not discouraged, he proceeded to cool the water. He started an ice factory, and every morning now during the summer he deposits ice in the different pools. Well, sir, it would tickle you to see the fish. When a wagon draws up to a pool the driver yells 'Ice!' and the fish come flying out from under the rocks. They get up on the ice and carry on in a perfect flutter of glee. Beats anything I ever saw."

"You know Hicks, do you, Dave?"

"Know him? Why, he doesn't live more than two miles from my place."

"Then he allow anybody to catch the trout?"

"He will give you all you can catch with a hook."

"I believe I will go out some time."

"Will you do you any good?"

"Why?"

"The fish won't bite for anybody but Hicks."

"They won't?"

"No, sir; you couldn't get a nibble."

"How do you account for it?"

"Gratitude."

"What?"

"Gratitude, I tell you. They know Hicks. They know how much he has done for them. Why, sir, he can pull them out as fast as he can throw in. You ought to see them look up in his face and smile. One day I was with him. Two of the biggest trout I ever saw began to fight for the hook. One of them got it, and the other one, determined not to be outdone, came out on the bank and lay down. I never saw such gratitude."

Opposed to Sunday Funerals.

One of the reforms which Chicago undertakers are endeavoring to bring about is the breaking up of the habit of having Sunday set apart, especially as a day for funerals. The practice has become so prevalent that the business on that day is frequently beyond the capacity of the undertakers to properly attend to it, and it is understood that there is agitation on foot that will probably take the shape of a well-defined movement in favor of reducing Sunday funerals to a minimum.

5 O'CLOCK EDITION.

SINCE January 1st American wools have been dull and hard to sell. During this time most of the woolen mills have been running full, so that the lack of demand for domestic wool has not been well understood. The following are some of the reasons: First—Manufacturers stocked up heavily after election, the usual demand at that time being one of the causes of the advance. Second—There has never been a time when the mills have been using so much foreign stock in some form or other. One of the worst features of the foreign competition has been the importations of fine scoured wool, carded and combed, and then broken up, to imitate waste. As one pound of this so-called waste takes the place of nearly four pounds of American wool, in the condition in which it is usually marketed, it is estimated that the quantity imported in one year is equal to the whole clip of Ohio. The Treasury Department, under the present Administration, has taken steps to stop the fraudulent importations of such scoured wool as is manufactured for the purpose of avoiding proper duties. The firmness of holders of wool since the election has been based mostly on what was expected from the present Treasury Department with regard to changes in the Customs rulings. Their prompt action on the waste matter meets with the favor of the trade, but up to this time there has been no official ruling with regard to the more important matter of worsted cloths, which, it is believed, have been heretofore improperly classified. The Appraisers of Philadelphia are now classifying them the same as other woolen cloth, but we are not aware that such action has been taken in other ports. The value of wool the coming season hinges almost wholly upon the action the Treasury Department will take on this matter. If they sustain the Philadelphia Appraiser, wool will, without doubt, continue on the present basis, which was reached after the election, mainly in anticipation of such rulings.

THE testimony taken before the Senate Committee on Commerce, holding its session in New York, is conclusive as to the effect the Canadian Pacific Railway has upon American roads. President Smith of the New York Chamber of Commerce said that the Canadian Pacific had been of great advantage to large shippers in certain localities in Maine, which were enabled to send their goods direct to Chicago as cheap as they could land them in New York or Boston. There are two reasons why the Canadian Pacific can underbid the American roads for freight. First, the subsidy it receives from the Government raises it above the necessity of making receipts equal to expenditures, and, second, the Canadian road is at liberty to fix its local rates to suit itself, while the American roads are not. Chauncey M. Depew recently suggested as a remedy for this unfair competition the construction or purchase of a grand trunk line from New York to San Francisco, which should be subsidized by the Government and thus enabled to compete with the Canadian subsidized line. This proposition raises the question if it is good policy to take the business of transportation off of a business basis. A grand trunk line subsidized by the Government would be as unfair a competitor against other American lines as the Canadian Pacific is at present against the American roads. Chauncey M. Depew's suggestions are entitled to great consideration, but it is probable that a more effective remedy for unfair Canadian competition can be found.

Thought to Have Been Murdered.

PIERRE, Dak., May 14.—The body of A. G. Duncan, who left Cheyenne agency two weeks ago in company with Arthur Redmond, for Ft. Pierre, with a herd of horses, was found near Cheyenne agency to-day. It is believed he was murdered. He had a large sum of money on his person when he left the agency. Redmond came to Ft. Pierre, with stock which he sold. It is said Duncan received bad news from his home in Oregon and started for there. A large reward is offered for Redmond's arrest.

Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Among the Supreme Court decisions yesterday was No. 226, Wallace Douglass, plaintiff in error, vs. Charles W. Lewis, et al. in error from the Supreme Court of the Territory of New Mexico. Judgment affirmed with costs. Opinion by Chief Justice Fuller.

The Chief Justice announced the allotment of Justice Harlan to the sixth circuit. Adjourned until October.

The Copper Syndicate.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The members of the copper syndicate and the American agents of the late French copper trust, who returned yesterday from Europe, held a meeting this morning, and declined to say anything regarding the nature of the business transacted, but it is understood the returned agents presented a report concerning the manipulation of the copper market by European dealers.

The President Interviewed.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—There was a great crowd of callers at the White House to-day. A delegation, consisting of Samuel C. Stratton, N. J. Carey and Samuel W. Hoyt of California; Mayor W. B. Lashmont of Portland, Captain W. P. Atwood, U. S. A.; C. H. Stoddard of Nevada, and A. J. Sampson of Colorado, had an interview with the President.

Oklahoma Lands.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The Clerks detailed from the general land office to go to Oklahoma to assist the land officials at Guthrie and Kingfisher, have returned to Washington, and state that at Kingfisher, 800 entries had been made up to Friday, and at Guthrie, 1,000. The total number of quarter sections in the Territory, is 10,000.

Some Serious Charges.

WINNEPEG, May 14.—The Free Press repeats its charges of corruption against Premier Greenway, and now accuses him of receiving money from the Promoters of the Manitoba Central Railway. Greenway will probably procure the appointment of a royal commission to investigate the charges.

Lord Lonsdale's Arctic Trip.

MONTREAL, May 14.—Lord Lonsdale arrived to-day. He still adheres to the statement that he was within the Arctic circle, and says that he will be able to prove it when he gets to London. He left for New York.

A Cold Election Day.

DICKINSON, Dakota, May 14.—Three inches of snow fell here to-day.

Stitching Brutality.

CHICAGO, May 13.—The testimony taken at the Cook County Insane Asylum to-day showed that there were 1,000 inmates with room for only 600; that attendants were insufficient and food bad. Evidence was also introduced to the effect that patients were fed pigs' heads for an entire year, with potatoes for vegetables once a week. There was no service, and the patients fought for the possession of the potatoes, with the result that the weak got none, and that over fifty of the inmates became afflicted with scurvy.

One of the medical staff testified that in one ward there are 28 patients with only nine rooms, or an average of three in each room. It was absolutely necessary to have one or two in some of the rooms, so that four persons were crowded into others. These rooms are 5½ by 10 feet in size. The beds are 2½ feet wide, but in many cases two patients are forced to sleep in them. Under such circumstances, with insufficient attendance, the patients would climb over their cots and fight, and medical attendants were frequently called six or eight times in a single night to go to patients who were attempting to commit murder or suicide. This state of affairs was reported to the members of the County Board again and again, but nothing was done to remedy it.

Around the World—Annie Pixley

NEW YORK, May 14.—Professor E. H. Platt, of the Riding Academy of this city, and John Allen, a hotel proprietor, started from here this morning on horseback on a trip across the continent to San Francisco. At San Francisco they will take a steamer to Australia and complete the circuit of the Globe, but will not take their horses with them.

No Longer Ministers.

NEW YORK, May 14.—At to-day's session of the general conference of the United Brethren in Christ, a resolution was adopted, declaring Bishop Milton Wright and certain delegates, including A. J. Jenett of the Oregon conference, no longer ministers or members of the church of United Brethren. These members are charged with having vacated their seats in this body and joined in the formation of another.

Prosecution Likely to Fail.

PARIS, May 14.—The Nineteenth Century, in an apparently inspired article, says the Senatorial court finds difficulty in framing a specific charge against Boulanger. Some of the Senators proposed that a nolle prosequi be entered in his case, others, that he be tried at the Assizes and others that he be court-martialed. It is believed, that paper says, the proceedings will fail and the prosecution of M. Rochefort will be abandoned.

The Dakota Election.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 14.—Reports from all over South Dakota indicate that a very small vote is being polled. No opposition is made to the old Sioux Falls Constitution of 1885. The Republicans are in a majority in both sections of the Territory. Rain and snow in some parts of North Dakota is interfering with the vote. The election develops no excitement, as there is nothing in particular at issue.

A New Death Sentence.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 14.—William Kemmler, convicted of murder for the killing of his mistress, Tillie Ziegler, was to-day sentenced to suffer punishment of death, to be inflicted by the application of electricity, within a week, commencing Monday, June 24. This is the death sentence under the new law.

Still Hunting Crooks.

TORONTO, May 14.—A couple of Chicago detectives came to town yesterday looking for Dr. Cronin. They endeavored to interview C. T. Long, a gentleman who claims to have recognized the Doctor on the street, but Long refused to talk to them. The detectives have no trace of the Doctor.

More Males.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 14.—At the sale to-day, Susan was sold to John Madden, of Lexington, Ky., for $10,000. A bay mare, by Electioneer, name Susie, by Calhoun (2:20) was sold to C. A. Hedges of Battle Creek, Mich., for $4,950.

A Business Failure.

BOSTON, May 14.—John R. Langley, doing business as Langley & Smith, shoe manufacturer, has assigned. His indebtedness will be less than $100,000. It is said the assets are sufficient to pay a large dividend.

Ancient Order of Hibernians.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The Ancient Order of Hibernians began its 57th annual meeting here to-day with closed doors. Delegates were present from all over the country. The meeting will continue several days.

The Contract Void.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Supreme Court affirms the judgment in the case of Sharon vs. Terry and wife.

Bar silver, 92½.

A Contempt Case Decided.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The Supreme Court to-day sustained the action of District Judge Ross at Los Angeles in sentencing Thos. J. Caddy and Alexander Savin to imprisonment for contempt of court. The contempt consisted of alleged attempts to bribe witnesses and jurors in the hallway of the court-room and outside of the court-room itself. The principal contention for the sentenced men was that the contempt powers of the Court did not extend outside of the building. The Court holds that such contention anywhere within a place set apart by law for the holding of court is contempt of court. The opinion is by Justice Harlan.

Baseball Games.

BOSTON, May 14.—Boston 13, Pittsburgh 9. Sowers and Damsell battery for Boston; Maull and Carroll for the Pittsburghs.

Louisville, May 14.—No game on account of rain.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The New Yorks were shut out, Cleveland winning with a score of 5. Titcomb and Murphy battery for the New Yorks; O'Brien and Limme for the Cleveland.

A Paymaster Robbed.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The War Department to-day received a telegram from General Miles of San Francisco, giving official particulars of the robbery of Paymaster W. Ham, in Arizona. It does not differ from the story as told in the Associated Press dispatches.

Valuable Brewery.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The afternoon papers report the sale to an English syndicate of the brewery of Ringler & Co. of this city, for $9,500,000.

Seemingly Fratricide.

With repeated and powerful doses of quinine, chills and fever, in some of its various forms, springs into active existence again, often without the slightest apparent provocation. To extinguish the smoldering embers of this obdurate and recalcitrant malady, no less than to subdue it when it rages fiercely in the system, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is all sufficient. When every resource of the pharmacopoeia has been exhausted against it, the Bitters conquer it—will remove every lingering vestige of it. Nay, more, the Bitters will protect those brought within the influence of the atmospheric poison that begets malarial disease, from its attacks. Disgusting of the stomach, liver and bowels, among the complaints to be apprehended from the use of miasmata-tainted water. These are both cured and prevented by the Bitters. Rheumatism, Constipation and renal calculi yield to its action.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price, 50 cents, 50 cents and 10. If your lungs are sore, Chest or Back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by Osburn & Shoemaker.

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy.

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy, a marvelous cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker Mouth and Headache. With each bottle there is an ingenious Nasal Injector for the more successful treatment of these complaints without extra charge. Price, 50 cents. Sold by Osburn & Shoemaker.

The Immediate symptoms of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, are a feeling of weight, oppression and fullness in the stomach, heartburn, loss of appetite, foul breath, belching, flatulency, nausea, pains in the shoulders and breast. Dr. Henley's Dandelion Tonic promotes healthy digestion and cures all unhealthy symptoms. Sold by William Fungler.

Answer this Question.

Why do so many people we see around us seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Coming up of the Food, Nervousness, when for 5 cents we will sell them Shiloh's System Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them? Sold by Osburn & Shoemaker.

It was maintained by the late Horace Greely, that "nothing succeeds like success!" If this be true, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will always be popular, as it never fails. It is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough, and is undoubtedly the best and most reliable medicine in use for those diseases. It is decidedly a success. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

JOTTINGS.

Cigar clippings for pipe smoking at Strassburg's.

Go to Lange & Schmitt's for garden hose, lawn mowers and ice cream freezers.

Strawberries and cherries, also oranges, lemons and fresh vegetables in season at Leadbetter's.

No boarder of the Riverside Hotel is ever known to spend money for either drugs or doctors' bills.

For the best firewood of any length desired, delivered in any part of the town, patronize J. F. Aiken.

Everything fresh and pure at Coffin & Laramore's; chickens, eggs, butter, cheese and all kinds of canned goods.

C. J. Brookins carries a full stock of the best French mixed candies, also a large assortment of nuts, both foreign and domestic.

For all the leading pictorials, monthly magazines and all the San Francisco daily papers, go to C. A. Thurston's news depot.

No matter how cold or hot, or how wet or dry the weather, J. J. Becker's hot lunches and Boca and Sacramento beer are always acceptable.

Remember by leaving orders at the N. C. & O. R. R. office or Folsom & Wells' you can get first-class wood of any length—good measure.

No matter what the result of the Samsan conference may be, George Becker will continue to supply his patrons with daily hot soup lunches.

A look into John Fraser's Virginia street market will convince you that he handles no second-class meats, and when you learn his prices you will understand why so many people patronize him.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Belleville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 30 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidney or Blood. Only a half a dollar a bottle, at S. J. Hodgkinson's druggist.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this country. Disease fastened its cruel claws on her for seven years she withstood by severest tests but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved by taking the first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle was miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby N. C.—Get a free trial bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

In Three Days.

Three days is a very short time in which to cure a bad case of rheumatism, but it can be done, if the proper treatment is adopted, as will be seen by the following from James Lambert of New Brunswick, Ill.: "I was badly afflicted with rheumatism in the hips and legs, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It cured me in three days. I am all right to-day, and I would urge on everyone who is afflicted with that terrible disease to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm and get well-toned." For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

It should be generally known that Dr. Hengley's Balm is a powerful remedy for all the ills and increased digestion, dispels nervous depression and low spirits, overcomes lack of energy and wakefulness, and will infuse new life and strength into the weakest invalid. Sold by William Fininger.

No matter how cold or hot, or how wet or dry the weather, J. J. Becker's hot lunches and Boca and Sacramento beer are always acceptable.

DECORATION DAY.

What Was Done at the Meeting Last Night.

At the meeting held at Nasby's Bazaar last evening to consider the proper observance of Decoration Day the following business was transacted: N. P. Jaques was called to the Chair and Rev. Wm. Lucas was elected Secretary. The following committees were appointed: From O. M. Mitchell, Foster, W. L. Bechtel, N. P. Jaques, Rev. Wm. Lucas and S. A. Hamlin, From the Ladies' Relief Corps—Mrs. Henry Hussey, Mrs. J. N. Evans, Mrs. Louis Dean and Mrs. White. From the citizens—W. O. H. Martin, C. C. Powning, Wm. Webster and H. P. Kraus. Hon. Wm. Webster was appointed a Committee of One on order of business.

A. A. Evans and H. P. Kraus were appointed a Committee on Finance, and request the citizens to get ready for their visit.

C. C. Powning was appointed a Committee on Carriages, and H. P. Kraus on the theater.

Hon. R. R. Bigelow was elected President of the Day, Hon. Thomas Fitch Orator and Major Ducat Grand Marshal.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION.

Another Step in the Right Direction.

Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday at Carson by Bishop Sharp, Joe Jennings and Richard Little for the U. P. road in Nevada. Bishop Sharp is President of the Utah Central. Just what is at the bottom of the movement is hard to say as Bishop Sharp refused to be interviewed by a GAZETTE reporter. Steve Gage recently told a GAZETTE reporter in San Francisco that they were running a big bluff and that it would be many years before another road would span the continent. The GAZETTE thinks, however, that Mr. Gage is mistaken, for it believes that the time is ripe for another road, and it believes another road will be built and that within two years.

Reilly & Woods.

The Reilly & Woods troupe will appear here Thursday, May 16th. The New York World says: The Valdis twin sisters, pretty and graceful girls, who had won plaudits in Europe long before they came here to find even warmer appreciation. Their skill and absolute daring are undeniable, and the picturesqueness of their feats strengthened by the uniqueness and beauty of their revolving apparatus, which seems to be all silver, of spider web construction. No more impressive mechanical effect has been seen here in years. The Valdis' performance finished with Miss Lizzie's daring dive from the dome of the theater to the net far below.

Mr. Reilly's show is so good that nobody can doubt that this season, like his namesake of hotel fame, he will do quite well.

Secure your seats early.

Nevada Wools.

The following is clipped from a sheet published by Justice Bateman & Co., commission merchants of Philadelphia: The finest territorial wools without exception heretofore have been the clips of Nevada. Whether the fact is owing to the fine blood qualities of the parent stock of the Nevada flocks, or owing to peculiarities in the pasture, we are unable to say, but for extremely fine goods Nevada wools are preferred to all other territorial kinds; and while the shrinkage in scouring is often great, yet on a secured basis they usually command higher figures than most any other territorial fine wools. During the past year Nevada wools were taken more promptly than almost any other territorial stock.

A Good Deal of Hay.

An error crept into the usually correct columns of the Silver State a few days ago, and made it say that O. North would not cut over thirteen or fourteen tons of hay where he usually cuts 4,000 on the Clover Valley range. Mr. North's agent was here Saturday, and said the ranch would cut nearly 1,500 tons of hay; that cattle were fat, and the range, especially on Rock Creek, was looking fine; that the cattle would be sent away, but that they had feed for all they had now, and would have hay enough for winter. No beef will be sold off the range this Fall, but it will all be fed and kept over twelve months longer.

San Francisco Meat Market.

Following are the rates for whole carcasses from slaughterers to dealers in San Francisco:

Beef—First quality, 5½¢@6¢; second quality, 5¢; third quality, 4½¢@5¢ per pound.

Veal—Quotable at 5¢@7¢ for large and 6¢@8¢ per pound for small.

Mutton—Quotable at 5¢@5½¢ per pound.

Lamb—Spring, 8¢@9¢ per pound.

Pork—Live Hogs, on foot, grain fed, 5½¢@6¢; soft, 5½¢@6¢; dressed, 9¢@9½¢ per pound.

Historic Remark.

Governor Richardson of South Carolina met Governor Fowler of North Carolina at their hotel in New York Monday evening. Said the former to Governor Fowler: "I suppose we have a historic remark to make to each other, but I don't drink so early in the day. Have a cigar?" And the two men smoked in the most companionable way.

Another Shower.

The Winnemucca Silver State of the 13th inst. says: The country was treated to another fine shower this morning, which continued about two hours, sprinkling the ground fairly well. Stockmen are beginning to feel more hopeful, and the prospects for feed are at least 50 per cent. better they were ten days ago.

Red Men's Picnic.

Pocahontas Tribe of Virginia and Apache Tribe of Gold Hill, by their committees, have settled the final arrangements to give a grand picnic at Tredegar's Park, Carson, June 9th, in which they will be joined by Minnehaha Tribe of Reno and Piute Tribe of Carson City.

After the above was in type the GAZETTE was informed that Minnehaha Tribe No. 3 declines to have anything to do with a Sunday picnic.

BREVITIES.

Local and General Intelligence.

S. M. Jamison is painting the exterior of his house.

Another car of chickens and ducks passed here this morning.

The Late W. H. Barnum.

The New York World says: "A very strange incident is related by a well-known correspondent of a conversation had with Mr. Barnum during the early part of his last campaign. He said: 'If I am found dead on the morning of November 7th don't say that grief for the defeat of Grover Cleveland caused it.'"

Mr. Barnum is said to have been a model husband and father. His wife knew all his political secrets, and what is better, perhaps, never divulged a single one.

Sheridan's Monument.

General Sheridan's monument at Arlington cemetery, Washington, is nearing completion, and will be ready for unveiling on Decoration Day. It will consist of a simple monolith of granite, with three sides plain white; upon the side toward Washington will be a medallion containing the bust of Sheridan in bas-relief with a headquarters flag behind, the only inscription being the word "Sheridan."

THE KENTUCKY DERBY.

Why Spokane Bears the Bluegrass Thoroughbred.

The winning of the Kentucky Derby by a mountain horse is an event which will set the far East and the far West to studying a new problem in horse-breeding. It has long been settled in the minds of the horsemen in this inter-mountain region, but it will be a new thing to the blue-grass and California valley horse raisers. The Salt Lake Tribune says the climate of California is not more favorable to the rapid growth of colts than that of Montana. If the winters are not quite so severe the summers are far more prostrating. Then the food in Montana, the grass, hay and grain, is far superior to that of the California valleys. With these conditions on the sea level, the Montana horse would have the advantage. But Spokane was bred and raised several thousand feet above the sea. He has lived all his life in a light atmosphere. The consequence is that his lungs are half as big again as they would have been had he been raised in Kentucky or in any of the coast valleys of California. So when taken from his home to Kentucky and put in a race with valley-bred colts, the same difference was realized that would be were two engines, each say, of forty-horse power put to an extreme test, with one driven by a forty-horse power boiler and the other by a sixty-horse power boiler. When men from a valley go up a mountain they are quickly exhausted. When men from the mountains go down to the seashore for several days they feel as though they had about them a buoyancy which prevented their feet from getting down to the ground. In one case men cannot get the needed oxygen, in the other they have such a surplus that it amounts to half intoxication. We believe that a thousand mountain miners have been arrested in San Francisco for too much hilarity, solely because with their expanded lungs filled with the dense air of the sea level, they, without comprehending anything except that they felt an indescribable joyousness, were impelled by an irresistible impulse to paint the town crimson. That was the way Spokane felt at Louisville, and that is why he easily took from Proctor Knott all chance for his friends to make excuses for him, by lowering the record two seconds. It does not prove that he is by nature a better horse than Proctor Knott. The chances are that with the same treatment the Kentucky horse may beat the mountain horse before the season is over, after the lungs of the latter shall have become adjusted to the Kentucky level. But just as a mountain Indian can outrun a valley Indian, a mountain horse when first taken to the valley, is a most dangerous competitor for the valley-bred horse. The one matter of the difference in the lung power of the horses is the chief difference, but at the same time the difference in food must be likewise considered. There is no country that raises superior grass and hay to Montana; no country where the horses have so long a summer of feeding on so nutritious, the climate more bracing, or where animals are troubled less by insects, and while the winters are cold, it is not a cold that reduces vitality. The East and West will have to look out in future for mountain colts.

The Last View of Washington.

William H. Burgess, who lives in Alexandria, D. C. assisted in building Washington's new tomb at Mount Varnum. He says: "I was a lad then, but I remember in removing the bodies of George and Martha to their present tomb, we decided to open the coffin. I looked in and saw the face of General Washington. The body was well preserved and the features were intact. There was nothing to indicate the time he had been dead. A minute after exposure to the air there was a color in the face, and he was recognizable. His face looked like his pictures."

WINTER WHEAT.
"Much bread is growing in the winter's night."
-Seydian Proverb.
Since all the wheat is hidden by the snow,
Its greenness is no more a sweet surprise.
Nor shall we see again the young blades rise,
And wave with every wind's breath to and fro.
How cruel is the fate that wills it so!
And crueler still the wintry blight that lies
On lovely lips and innocent dear eyes.
That death has stricken. How can we forego
Our passions uttering! Wrong, oh, wrong
To break the bud before its perfect flower,
To stop the music in the middle song.
And bring the dark in morning's happy hour!
What recompense, O bitter life in thee
Whose discord so outrages Harmony?
But wait till time is ripe; a vernal air Across the world of ice blows warm and sweet;
The snow-wreaths melt; and lo! the tender
wheat,
Alive, upbust, unsparring everywhere!
All through the bliter winter's blank despair,
Through the wild days of toasting hail and sleet,
And frozen nights whose glittering stars repeat
The changeless truth of God's eternal care,
His life was growing! Rustles soul, be still,
And brood upon the meaning of these things.
And beat no more with madly fluttering wings
Against the steadfast, omnipresent will:
"Much bread is growing in the winter's night."
And outer darkness yields the inner light.
-Mary Bradley, in Harper's Weekly.

THE FAMILY JEWELS.

Playing for High Stakes and Winning an Old Maid.

It was a clear, still evening in October.
There had been a frost the night before,
and Miss Mary Gaynor had left her housework to take care of herself since noon, while she had gone nutting on Bald Mountain.

"Chestnuts bring a good price in the market," said she, "and between the boys and the squirrels, there ain't much chance, unless you get an early start."

Miss Gaynor was a sharp-faced, elderly woman, whose mouth and chin were in close neighborhood, and who was the byword of the whole town for her parsimony. With her lived her nephew Gabriel, a gaunt, "old-young" man of thirty, and Judge Dynevor had been heard to declare that if Miss Mary and her nephew Gabriel were, by some mystical mistake, to assume each other's clothes some day, no one would be able to tell them apart.

The Gaynor kitchen was painfully neat,
but there was not one superfluous article of furniture to be seen. The tea-kettle was small, and sat on an insignificant stand over the handful of coals in the stove - even the cat sat before a mousehole in the corner with green eyes of famished eagerness.

"What with pigs to fat, and fowls to keep in good laying order," said Miss Mary,
"there ain't nothing to spare for the cat. If she don't want to starve, let her catch mice."

As she put the last of the brown, shining nut into the basket, and closed the door, she took a sigh of satisfaction, the door opened, and in walked Gabriel.

"Ain't supper ready?" said he, looking about rather blankly.

"Well, I wasn't calculating to give ye no regular supper to-night," said Aunt Mary.
"The kettle's a bilin, and there's some rye-bread and a bunk o' cold pork on the buttery shelf. We oughter get the wagon packed with garden truck to-night, so to lose no time to-morrow mornin'." If Deacon Eyecote's chestnuts to the grocery.

"before we get our'n, there'll be a clean
-o' ten cents a bushel."

"That 'ud never do," said Gabriel. "But,
Aunt Mary, I was thinkin' some o' goin' over to Fetherbee's to-night, arter we'd got the wagon ready."

"To Fetherbee's! What for?" said Aunt Mary, raising her thin voice to a sort of screach. "I haint no sort of idee o' that gilglin', black-eyed Mary Fetherbee, brung up in a family where they use white sugar in their tea and think a rag carpet ain't genteel enough for their parlor."

"Sh-sh-sh!" soothed Gabriel. "You don't understand, Aunt Mary. I was gettin' my axe ground over to Smith's to-night, when I heard suthin'."

"Heard what?"

"Jeeshold on a minnit till I tell ye. George Fetherbee was in the store, talkin' sort o' confidential to old Smith. But I could hear real plain through a big crack in the board idin' for all the noise the bellows make for my ear was just agin the wall. And says George: 'The jewels is comin' next month.' And says old Smith: 'Them jewels is goin' to be an awful responsibility!' And says George: 'You bet!' says he. And Smith he asks, up and down, 'Is it settled that they belong to you?' And says George Fetherbee, says he: 'That's about it.' And just then little Sambo stopped grindin', so I didn't hear no more."

"Jewels, eh?" said Aunt Mary, whose small, faded eyes had glowed into phrescented luster. "What kind o' jewels, now, I wonder! And how much they're worth!"

"Well, you know," said Gabriel, "there was a lawsuit, years ago, in the Fether-bee family about a trunk o' valuables as was sent from Uncle Theodoros Fetherbee, out West, and got lost in the Adams Express robbery. Nobody knowed exactly what it was, but it was sort o' reckoned to be diamonds and nuggets, and emeralds, and suthin'."

"Land o' Goshen!" said Aunt Mary. "I did hear somethin' about it at the time. I remember it now, but I s'posed it was only neighborhood talk. I see it all! You are a sensible fellow, Gabe, and I've suspected all along that Mary Fetherbee was partial to you, and I don't think you can do better than to go right down there and propose to her, before any of the other fellows ot in."

"I thought you'd approve of it," said Mr.
Gaynor, complacently.

"And," added Miss Mary, "I'll pack the wagon myself. There ain't no sort of occasion for you to waste time foolin' with the parsons, and the pound sweets, and the chestnuts. Why, Mary Fetherbee 'll be a full-blown heiress, as good as the world.
Jewels! Well, I do declare!"

Gabriel Gaynor tied on his best navy blue silk cravat, bought cheap, because of a flaw in the stitching, ornamented his pale tow-colored hair with tallow, and set forth on love's errand.

Mary Fetherbee was a village belle, with her dimples, her red cheeks, and her black eyes, and Gabriel was not altogether blind to these attractions, yet if she had been fascinated herself he would have married her, if the money part of the question had been satisfactory.

It was not a long walk across the fields,
although by the high road it was a good mile and a half between the Gaynor farm and Mrs. Fetherbee's white house. George Fetherbee himself sat on the doorstep, whittling a new key-jin.

"Mary in, eh?" said Gabriel, somewhat awkwardly.

"Yes, she's in," said George, contemplating his work by the light of the hall lamp that swung within. "But she's engaged."

"Engaged?"

George chuckled. "Engaged talkin'?"

Yes, said he. "It's been a sort Squire Dolly's son Isaac. It's been a long of understandin' thing between 'em this long time. And to-night he asked her, up and down, if she'd marry him; and I guess she didn't say no."

"Well, took out his pocket-handkerchief and wiped the cold sweat off his forehead.
So he was too late!

Just then Miss Joanna Fetherbee came around the corner of the house like a whirlwind - a tall, spare female, a dead match for his own Aunt Mary.

"George Fetherbee!" said she, "I'm astonished at you! Sittin' idlin' here, when you promised to catch them two red chintz roosters when the fowls was gone to roost, so I could get their necks wrung before!"

She stopped short at the apparition of Gabriel Gaynor. Gabriel eyed her thoughtfully. She was a half-sister of George's, the child of old Deacon Fetherbee's first wife.
She was neither young nor beautiful, and her temper was well known in the neighborhood; but she was a Fetherbee, and as such joint heir to the jewels with pretty Mary. Gabriel remembered all this, and promptly stepped into the breach.

"I'll catch them chintz-colored roosters for you, Miss Joanna," said he, gallantly.
"I'm always pleased to be of service to the ladies."

And so this middle-aged Cupid and Psyche disappeared into the hen-house, with a candle; and after an absence that appeared perfectly unaccountable to George, who still sat there polishing off the gate-pin, reappeared with the cackling prey in safe custody.

"Let me wring their necks for you, darling," said Gabriel, spasmodically.

"Oh, never mind, dear," chirped Joanna;
but she rushed off to her own room, nevertheless, nearly upsetting Mrs. Fetherbee on the stairs.

"Eh!" said George.

"Yes," said Gabriel, changing from one foot to the other as he stood holding the basket of chickens, "she's promised to be Mrs. Gabe Gaynor."

"Ain't this rather sudden?" said George,
staring with all his eyes.

"Such things always happen sudden at the last," said Gabriel, composedly.

"Won't you make rather an elderly pair
o' turtle-doves?" said the audacious George.

"That ain't nobody's business but your own," said Gabriel. "Just fetch me an axe, George, there's a good fellow. I low it's easier to chop off these fowls' heads than to wring their necks."

Mrs. Fetherbee smiled when she heard the news. "I'm not sorry," said she. "Joanna has always been a trial in the family, but there seemed no way of getting rid of her."

"Gabe Gaynor must be an all-fired fool," observed George Fetherbee. "Why, she's forty, if she's a day! And her tongue -"
"Eh, my son," said the gentle mater-familias. "It's all for the best!"

Desirous though Gabriel was to learn the story of the family inheritance, he judged it best to ask no questions at present.

"I don't know to what I think I'm marrying into the family just for that," said he. "Joanna thinks I'm desperately in love with her!"

"Let her think so," said Aunt Mary, sagely nodding her head. "We're playing for high stakes, this time, we've done for and me, Gabe! Don't let's run any risks."

It was the day before the wedding. Georgie Gaynor was sitting before the fire trying to think of something to say to his fiancee, when George Fetherbee came in.

"Why, he said, 'they'll be here to-night.'"
"Who?" said Gabriel.

"Why, the Jewels."

Gabriel pricked up his ears.

"Eh!" said he. "How are they coming by express? Is that quite safe, do you think?"

"By express!" echoed George. "No.
Why should they come by express? They are coming in the cars, like other folks."

"Who be?"

"The Jewels. Let me see. There's Aunt Leah and Jane, and Eliza and little Benben."

"I don't think - I understand - you," said Gabriel, slowly. "I s'posed they were family jewels."

"So they be. Father's cousins."

"Eh?"

"Why, yes. Did you think they were cattle?" retorted George Fetherbee, laughing. "They've been left unprovided for, by Uncle Peter Jewell's death, and mother thinks we can't keep them in the house for them here. They're very nice, clever people, and the children will be very helpful about the place."

Gabriel Gaynor's lower jaw dropped. So this was the end of the Family Jewels! And his heart sank within him, as, at that very instant, he heard Joanna's shrill voice upraised in the kitchen beyond.

"She was going to be a Family Jewell, too!"

But he married her. What else could he do? He married her, and very busy, busiling wife she made him. But when, one day, he ventured to ask George Fetherbee about the real treasures, he burst out laughing.

"That old trunk of Uncle Theodoros!" said he. "There wasn't a thing in it but pawna tickets and old clothes. If ever he had any jewels, he'd gambled 'em away out West. But it's my opinion he never had none."

And so ended Gabriel Gaynor's radiant anticipations. - Amy Randolph, in N. Y.
